VENTURA MORNINGSTAR DIVERSIFIED INCOME MODEL

December 2018

COMMENTARY

2018 proved to be a challenging year for investors. During the final quarter, positive sentiment, especially toward U.S. shares, made way for fear and uncertainty. In many ways, the issues dominating media headlines are not new. Indeed, we have known about the likes of Brexit, the escalation in trade tariff tensions and the expected upward path of U.S. interest rates for some time, notwithstanding that we are a little further down the road as these matters play out. However, other possible headwinds have emerged too.

More recently, global growth concerns have been compounded by a plunging oil price and potentially worrying signals from the U.S. bond market, which is indicating the increased risk of a U.S. recession. This comes as the ability of Trump to implement his agenda is now in question following the result of the midterm elections that saw the Republicans lose the lower house. Closer to home, political disarray and uncertainty around the final outcomes of the Royal Commission are negatively impacting investor confidence. Understandably, share markets struggled in this environment, with many key indices posting losses in excess of 10% for the quarter.

The outlook for Australian and especially U.S. equities is far less compelling, with both markets offering poor forecast returns, after inflation, leading to the increased likelihood of losses in these markets. Among defensive assets, Emerging Market Debt (bonds issued by Emerging Market nations) offer the most attractive reward for risk, with shorter dated U.S. bonds also representing reasonable value.

Morningstar's Investment Approach

Morningstar's disciplined investment approach delivers independent, cost effective and holistic solutions for our clients – helping them reach their financial goals. This long-term, valuation driven approach is underpinned by an emphasis on preserving capital and undertaking meticulous comprehensive fundamental analysis of global asset classes and securities.

Portfolio Construction Process

When building diversified portfolios to achieve long-term real returns (after fees and taxes), a dynamic approach to asset allocation improves the outcome for investors. A total-portfolio-perspective approach that seeks to adjust the portfolio when the reward for risk changes, and measures risk in a more meaningful way to preserve capital for investors, is expected to provide a more stable and improved path to wealth accumulation. This approach is often contrarian to market consensus with patience and discipline provides significant investment opportunities.

Security Selection

Buying shares of superior businesses and allowing them to compound over time is the surest way to create wealth in the stock market. The long-term fundamentals of businesses, such as cash flow, competition, economic cycles, and stewardship, are the primary focus because history has shown that market sentiment is fleeting, momentum can quickly reverse, and the herd is sometimes a dangerous crowd. Occasionally, this approach causes our investment models to appear out of step, but willingness to be contrarian is an important source of outperformance.
