

VENTURA MORNINGSTAR AUSTRALIAN SHARES INCOME MODEL

February 2020

COMMENTARY

Shares rallied in late 2019 to cement a strong year of gains across major equity markets around the world. Looking back over one of the stronger years on record, the common catalyst was the influence of central banks, whose support came in response to sluggish growth (both economically and in terms of corporate profitability). That said, counter to earlier signals, the global economy proved more resilient than many expected as the year wound to a close. This coupled with trade fears subsiding and greater clarity regarding a potential Brexit outcome (following Boris Johnson's convincing victory in the UK election), sent shares to record highs in many parts of the world. All equity sectors gained ground, but energy was relatively weak as concerns around oil oversupply tempered gains and healthcare took some heat amid political developments. Booming technology stocks and the internet-oriented names in the communications-services sector underpinned the "growth" style's outperformance of "value" through 2019. Regarding size, larger companies dominated smaller equivalents over the last three quarters of the year, partly buoyed by bigger global weights in technology and financials.

Turning to bonds, the Federal Reserve's policy reversal (that has given investors a renewed confidence in the "lower for longer" interest rate outlook) drove strong returns across fixed income markets through 2019, although this ran out of steam as the year came to an end. The broad message was clear, however, with central bank easing, low defaults and manageable inflation expectations helping bond investors. Even the riskier corners of the bond market did well, with high yield bonds and emerging markets debt delivering double-digit gains. On the one hand, 2019 was a great year for investors. Double-digit returns in share markets will usually put a smile on most faces but on the other, we've endured one of the more unpredictable periods in history, with low interest rates, heightened geopolitical uncertainty and stretching asset prices dominating question time. Indeed, these returns have been achieved with very little regard for risk.

Regardless of how we got here, it is hard to look past the evidence linking expensive valuations to lower future returns. As such, we must be mindful of behavioural biases that paint these recent returns as reasonable and sustainable expectations for the future. With this in mind, the Model Manager continues to focus on delivering the maximum amount of return, for a given level of risk, as opposed to just generating returns without regard for the risk taken in achieving them. Ultimately, their process looks to identify unloved assets that they think will help deliver investor outcomes over the longer term.

Morningstar's Investment Approach

Morningstar's disciplined investment approach delivers independent, cost effective and holistic solutions for our clients – helping them reach their financial goals. This long-term, valuation driven approach is underpinned by an emphasis on preserving capital and undertaking meticulous comprehensive fundamental analysis of global asset classes and securities.

Portfolio Construction Process

When building diversified portfolios to achieve long-term real returns (after fees and taxes), a dynamic approach to asset allocation improves the outcome for investors. A total-portfolio-perspective approach that seeks to adjust the portfolio when the reward for risk changes, and measures risk in a more meaningful way to preserve capital for investors, is expected to provide a more stable and improved path to wealth accumulation. This approach is often contrarian to market consensus with patience and discipline provides significant investment opportunities.

Security Selection

Buying shares of superior businesses and allowing them to compound over time is the surest way to create wealth in the stock market. The long-term fundamentals of businesses, such as cash flow, competition, economic cycles, and stewardship, are the primary focus because history has shown that market sentiment is fleeting, momentum can quickly reverse, and the herd is sometimes a dangerous crowd. Occasionally, this approach causes our investment models to appear out of step, but willingness to be contrarian is an important source of outperformance.
