

VENTURA MORNINGSTAR CONSERVATIVE MODEL

February 2021

COMMENTARY

While we gladly wave goodbye to 2020, we have endured a period of surprising benefit in the financial market. If one asked you how the market would perform if a global pandemic hit, causing widespread job losses and the biggest contraction in the economy for around 90 years, we doubt you'd describe today's reality. Global stocks, corporate bonds, real estate, gold, commodities, and bitcoin have all moved forward and delivered positive performance.

The final quarter of 2020 was a strong one by historical measures. It is a clear case of market participants looking over the horizon, spurred on by the vaccine rollout combined with a perception of greater political stability. The wave of "good news" comes with many fascinating and constructive sub plots. One of the most interesting happened in the fourth quarter of 2020, where value stocks bucked a multi-year trend to join the winner's list. This was partly marked by President-elect Biden's victory but is also a vision for life after lockdowns and COVID-19, with the reopening of the economy considered a positive for economically sensitive sectors. Company defaults and bankruptcies also remain low globally, defying the doomsayers, supported by record stimulus and the cheapest borrowing rates ever seen.

Highlights of the quarter and full year of 2020 includes global shares where US markets rallied 70% from the March lows, shares in emerging market companies outperforming developed market peers due to renewed confidence in the outlook for global growth and low U.S. interest rates, energy and financials being the best performing sectors in Q4 2020 and riskier high yield and emerging markets bond categories performing the best on the back of the improved outlook for global growth.

Above all else, while it may feel like a good time to invest, investors still need to weigh up the prices that they are paying, as we have seen extreme divergence in asset prices, which potentially raises the risk of loss. As Warren Buffett once said, "Only when the tide goes out do you discover who's been swimming naked". That said, the model manager continues to see opportunities and remain confident that their positions are in the best long-term interests of the clients—acknowledging tomorrow's challenges and working towards a prosperous 2021 and beyond with good financial decision making.

Morningstar's Investment Approach

Morningstar's disciplined investment approach delivers independent, cost effective and holistic solutions for our clients – helping them reach their financial goals. This long-term, valuation driven approach is underpinned by an emphasis on preserving capital and undertaking meticulous comprehensive fundamental analysis of global asset classes and securities.

Portfolio Construction Process

When building diversified portfolios to achieve long-term real returns (after fees and taxes), a dynamic approach to asset allocation improves the outcome for investors. A total-portfolio-perspective approach that seeks to adjust the portfolio when the reward for risk changes, and measures risk in a more meaningful way to preserve capital for investors, is expected to provide a more stable and improved path to wealth accumulation. This approach is often contrarian to market consensus with patience and discipline provides significant investment opportunities.

Security Selection

Buying shares of superior businesses and allowing them to compound over time is the surest way to create wealth in the stock market. The long-term fundamentals of businesses, such as cash flow, competition, economic cycles, and stewardship, are the primary focus because history has shown that market sentiment is fleeting, momentum can quickly reverse, and the herd is sometimes a dangerous crowd. Occasionally, this approach causes our investment models to appear out of step, but willingness to be contrarian is an important source of outperformance.
